

Name this colt

This little black fellow was just born on the preserve and since there will be fewer and fewer babies in the future, we wanted to be creative in naming those we do have. No more “Black” or just “Pinta”. We wanted names that would stir a response on our resident’s page. So the volunteers have been throwing around possible names and decided it would be a good idea to have a naming contest opened to all Preserve followers.

Submit your name for this little guy using the comment tab and we’ll choose a name that best fits his personality and family group. He is growing fast and is rambunctious. Here is his background:

- Mom is – Tawny
- Born on – April 20th

The winner will be awarded a framed picture of the little guy establishing his name and listing the winner as his “official name giver” with progress reports and pictures emailed throughout his first year. The winner will also be invited to come to the Preserve and take their own picture of the newly named colt. Think of something interesting for this little guy to carry in what is hoped to be a long, free life on the Preserve.
