

SASSY

Sassy is a very pretty bay mare with a white blaze. She is the only bay mare in the bands that roamed the western areas of the BLM. Observers know her mother was Molly and that she was born in the summer of 2007; they are just not certain who the stallion was. Since she is bay, the speculation is that Rico from the Algodones area is her Dad.

Sassy was named aptly. Little Pinta showed up one day having been “stolen” from Don Juan’s heard by Sundance. The next day Pinta had her pal Sassy in tow bringing her to the new heard. The word was out, a group of ladies were taking food out the Sundance’s herd in backpacks; and as the ladies were walking along the trail Sassy walked up behind one and tried to grab the backpack to wrestle it away from the feeder. She knew where the food was and was not going to wait until it was put out for her. She is not to be pushed around by anyone in the herd especially Sundance the stallion. She bosses him around like a mare twice her size.

Sassy and her little colt were attacked by a dog, cougar or some animal during his first three weeks. The scars along his face and the deep gash on his chest have healed. Sassy had some gashes across her chest from the same attack. She lived up to her name and took the attack on her little one as nothing she’d put up with. Sassy is out on the preserve bossing around any horse, no matter its size.
