

SUNDANCE

Sundance is a handsome bright, coppery bay stallion with a couple of mares. He has the Placitas Wild Horse trademark tail that drags the ground and a mane show horse owner's envy.

Sundance was born in Algodones to Rico and Blue Lady in 2004 and has an interesting story. In 2006 you could see his parents continually forcing him from their area just beyond the quarry to the edges of La Mesa.

Every time Sundance attempted to return to his home, his parents brought him right back. Volunteers like to say it was as though they were telling him to get a job and move out of the house.

After a summer of getting driven away from his "boyhood home" he finally got the message and took up residence on the Placitas side of Las Huertas. After months of roaming, he finally found old Nana and the two became a family. She needed protection and he needed company. They made a real Placitas Odd Couple. Cougar Nana and the young, handsome Stallion.

Sundance learned a lot from Nana and is still taking his job very seriously on the preserve "taking care of his herd" and keeping the other stallions away from his family.
